Homecoming Ceremony

10 Voted to Sports Hall of Fame

A member of the Canadian Senate, the Mexican Ambassador to Canada, two former National Hockey League stars and a distinguished father-son combination are among the first selections, 10 in all, voted into the newly-established Loyola Sports Hall of Fame, the seven-man, press-television selection committee announced late in May.

There were a total of 36 nominations made and the 10 elected fell either under the category of bringing sport fame to Loyola during or after their student years or in the category of coaching with outstanding results. The formal presentations to be made at the October 21 Loyola Alumni Homecoming events will go to:

Senator Charles "Chubby" Power, '07; His Excellency Pedro R. Suinaga, '26; Paul Haynes, '30; Charles "Dinny" Dinsmore; Frank Shaughnessy, Senior and Junior, '32; Robert "Bob" Bedard, '51; Dr. Robert J. Brodrick, '43; Bernie McCallum, '43; and the late Robert John "Jake" Warren, '43; killed in action with the R.C.A.F. in 1943.

SENATOR POWER, the former wartime Minister of National Defence for Air, began his sporting career at Loyola in 1899 and was captain of the senior college hockey team for several years.

During his senior year, at Christmas time, he was induced to play a game for the Quebec Bulldogs against Ottawa in the National Hockey Association (forerunner of the N.H.L.) under an assumed name; it cost him his amateur status but brought pro offers which he rejected. He also starred in football, bicycle racing and track.

MEXICAN AMBASSADOR SUINAGA made history as a drop-kicker at Loyola during his student days (1920-1926), scoring from midfield while kicking with either foot and starring on two junior inter-collegiate Canadian championship teams. After Loyola, he made the Mexican Olympic soccer team in 1928, is a former president of the Mexican Golf Association and a member of that country's Organizing Committee for the 1968 Olympics there.

PAUL HAYNES, quarterback of Loyola's 1928 Canadian intermediate intercollegiate football championship team, twice captain of the senior hockey team, junior boxing champion of Montreal at 110 pounds in 1924, organizer and coach of several college baseball teams, and member of the 1929 M.A.A. Allan Cup Champions. He went on to star for a period of 10 years in the National Hockey League with the Maroons, Boston Bruins and Canadiens.

Father, Son Team Lauded

Writing in the Montreal Star, sports columnist Red Fisher congratulated those admitted into Loyola's new sports shrine, and said their credentials are flawless.

"Nothing is quite as exciting, however, as the inclusion of a father-son team among the first group of names. And no men are more worthy, it seems to me, than Frank Shaughnessy Sr. and Frank, Jr.," Fisher continued.

"The elder Shaughnessy surely is one of the grandest names ever associated with sport on the North American continent... amateur or professional. He was established as an athlete of excellent skills only shortly after the turn of the century, but the man's greatest contribution was as a builder and leader.

"Where would minor league baseball have been without the Shaughnessy playoff plan?

"Would the International Baseball League have been as prosperous as it was had not Shaughnessy directed its operation for more than 21 years? He coached teams at Loyola and at McGill University for more than two decades and made men out of boys.

"During his time, he was a distinguished leader of athletes and he still is quick to teach a listener at a time in his life when he can look back on 80 summers.

"No, no, this is how you hit a golf ball," he was telling a visitor recently. "The weight down this side of your body..."

"An amazing guy," the man who related the incident told me the other day.

"Truly amazing, because when Shaughnessy delivered his brief golf lesson, he was imprisoned in a hospital bed. Only a few weeks earlier, Frank Shaughnessy, aged 80, had his leg amputated.

"The Shaughnessy name has been a brilliant chapter in Loyola's rich history. There was Frank, the elder. There were his eight sons — all of them athletes and all educated at Loyola. Among them was Frank, Jr., who joins his father in the first group enshrined in Loyola's hall of honor.

"His athletic qualities were formidable at Loyola and elsewhere. Football, hockey, baseball and track... a captain on many teams. He was a member of the United States Olympic hockey team in 1936 — winner of a third-place bronze medal. This was young Frank, the athlete, but surely his greatest contributions have come in the years after his active athletic roles were ended.

"Three times, he has been Chef de Mission of Canadian Olympic teams and he fulfills similar responsibilities at Grenoble next year. He has contributed wondrously on an executive level to skiing and golf and has been a vice-president of the Canadian Olympic Association since 1956.

"He has given completely of his time and of himself to the welfare of those who have followed him and that, it seems to me, is what a Hall of Fame is all about. Or should be."

10 VOTED (Continued from page 3)

DINNY DINSMORE, a star of the N.H.L. Montreal Maroons, was elected on a basis of his distinguished coaching with Loyola hockey and football teams over a 10-year period, 1930-1940. His most notable achievement was guiding three successive senior teams (1938-1940) to hockey's Dominion Intercollegiate Intermediate titles.

FRANK SHAUGHNESSY, SR., one of the sport's most legendary characters as athlete, coach and 21-year president of the International Baseball League, not only contributed eight sons — all athletes — to Loyola, but served as coach of several football teams, most notably the 1928 Canadian intermediate champions.

FRANK SHAUGHNESSY, JR., starred in Loyola football, hockey, baseball and track from 1924 through high school and college into 1932. He played hockey and football at McGill after Loyola and made use of his dual citizenship to play for the bronze-medallist United States Olympic hockey team in 1936.

After overseas service with the Canadian Army he served as Chef de Mission (general manager) on three Canadian Winter Olympics teams (1956, 1960 and 1964) and has been appointed to the same post for 1968. He is vice-president of the Canadian Olympic Association.

BOB BEDARD, one of Canada's all-time tennis greats, won his first trophy at Loyola in 1951. He was three-time Canadian Open champion and won 213 consecutive victories over Canadians from 1954 to 1964. He played on the Canadian Davis Cup team for nine consecutive years, 1953-1961.

In hockey he was voted the most valuable player trophy for Sherbrooke Beavers of the Quebec Senior Hockey League in 1956. He won a silver medal in tennis singles at the Pan American Games in Chicago and was elected 1966-67 president of the Province of Quebec Lawn Tennis Association.

DR. BOB BRODRICK's football career at Loyola extended from playing as a bantam in 1935 high school competition to coaching in 1942 but his hockey record, also starting in 1935, went through high school and college to the 1939-1940 Dominion title team, with the junior and senior Royals, several McGill and service teams, the Lachine Rapides and concluded as playing coach of the Streatham team in the English National League, 1949-50.

He authored a book, "Ice Hockey", that is used in the Encyclopedia Britannica. First winner of the Loyola Sportsmanship Trophy in 1942, he filled all executive roles in the Loyola College Athletic Association and later served two terms as president of the Loyola Alumni Association.

BERNIE McCALLUM won three most valuable player awards as a high school and college hockey player as well as several all-star spots. As a coach at Loyola he won eight intercollegiate hockey titles. He starred on a total of seven high school and college football teams, coached during ten more years.

In baseball, his career extended from high school and college through wartime service teams to a professional offer in 1946 from the Southern League which he rejected to continue college.

JAKE WARREN was a member of the Class of 1943 but left during the 1940-41 season to join the R.C.A.F. He was a headline star with hockey and football teams from high school bantam up through college, being named captain on several of them. At the time of his death he was an outstanding prospect.

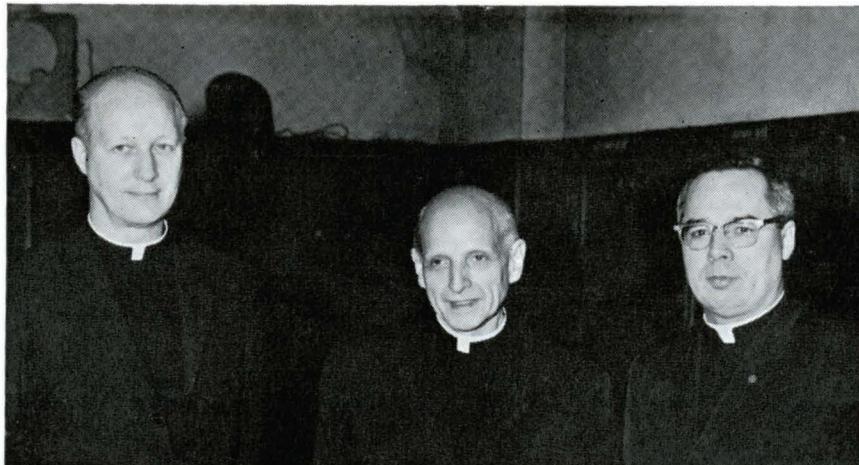

The selection committee for the Loyola Sports Hall of Fame consisted of Elmer Ferguson and Baz O'Meara, Montreal Star; Dink Carroll and Pat Curran, The Gazette; Marcel Desjardins, La Presse; Dick Irvin, CFCF-TV; and Weekend Magazine's Andy O'Brien, '31, as chairman.

Superior-General Visits Here

Very Reverend Pedro Arrupe, S.J., Superior-General, has returned to Rome following a week-long visit to the Jesuit communities of Montreal. He was accompanied by Very Reverend John L. Swain, S.J., who was acting Superior-General prior to Fr. Arrupe's election.

During his visit, the superior-general was guest of honor at a reception tendered him by Loyola of Montreal. During his stay at Loyola, Fr. Arrupe addressed the heads of Jesuit communities and mission directors. After the reception, he was honored at a dinner in Hingston Hall, in attendance at which were Paul Emile Cardinal Leger, Archbishop of Montreal, and prominent Montrealers.

During the week, Fr. Arrupe also visited the French Jesuit province, St. Jerome and made a short visit to Expo 67. At Expo he visited the Christian Pavilion, with which he was greatly impressed. He particularly lauded its modern approach.

In a statement to reporters upon his arrival Fr. Arrupe defined Catholicism's greatest concern as Atheism. This new "secular humanism" can only be fought through a scientific analysis.

"We must share our gift of faith", he said, "through human love".

At the Loyola reception in the Physical Education Centre, Fr. Arrupe thanked the 500 prominent Montrealers who were present for the support and help they had given the Society of Jesus in its work over the years. He had especially warm words of gratitude and affection for those present who were the parents of Jesuit Fathers.

"You have given us your most precious possession," he said, "you have given us your sons and the Society will be forever grateful."

Hingston Becomes 'Hotel' for Expo

Expo 67 is doing strange things to many people in Montreal, but perhaps the strangest thing it has done is to turn Leslie Price into a hotel keeper. Loyola has known Leslie as the director of food services and as director of residence. But during the hot, hectic months of Summer 67, he becomes the manager of the Hingston Hall Hotel.

The Hingston Hall residence is normally quiet during the summer months. A few scholarly theologians, a stray Jesuit or two and even the odd student will check in, but life is slow when the student body is at home.

But in this year of Expo, Loyola has placed its residence facilities at the disposal of members of the faculty and staff of various American and Canadian universities. The cost is moderate.

Already reservations and academic tourists are pouring into Hingston Hall. Mr. Price reports that among the groups expected this summer are: Canadian Advertising Agency Practitioners, Catholic Biblical Association, and the Corporation des Instituteurs Catholiques de Québec. The Czechoslovakian Folklorique Group stayed at Hingston Hall while performing at Expo.

Turner Addresses Convocation

Record Number Graduate

Canada's Registrar-General was guest speaker at the 71st Loyola spring convocation, where 318 students — a record number — received degrees in Arts, Science, Engineering and Commerce.

On the brink of a new world crisis, "you cannot afford to be a silent generation," Hon. John N. Turner told the graduating class.

Mr. Turner told the students to become involved in the world's affairs.

"Now when the entire world seems hellbent on a collective death-wish, you must involve yourselves. You must become concerned.

"Should you fail to become part of the legitimate process by which decisions are made you will never again have the right to complain," he warned.

He said the present is indeed different from any other period of history, "because there will be no second chance. There is no choice for you but to face our era in the terms which I have described."

Mr. Turner added that Canada has a place to find in world affairs.

"We can compete in quality and excellence. Each of you should be dedicated to excellence and quality. If you do and if we respond, we Canadians can beat the world."

Loyolas' president, Very Rev. Patrick G. Malone, awarded the degrees to all graduating students — except one.

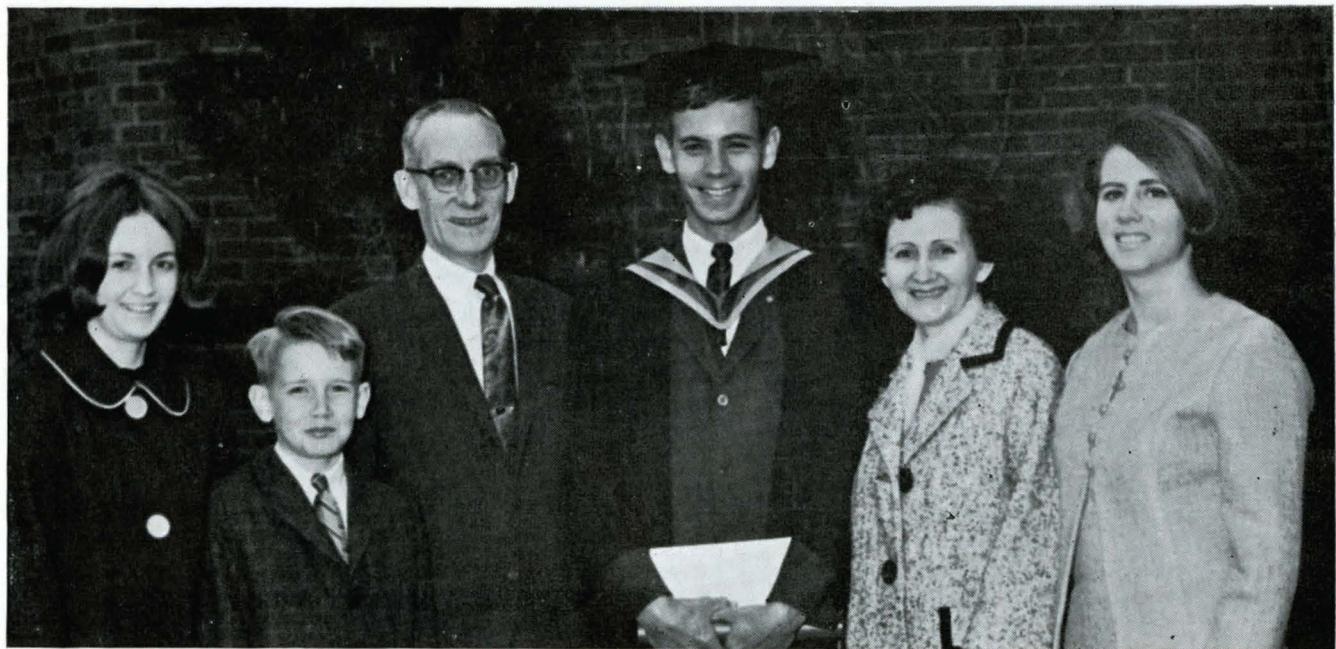

Miss Diana Gabias, BA, received her degree from her uncle, Provincial Secretary Yves Gabias, who was representing the Quebec Government.

There were more than 30 women graduates at the convocation, the first class to graduate since women students were admitted at Loyola in 1963.

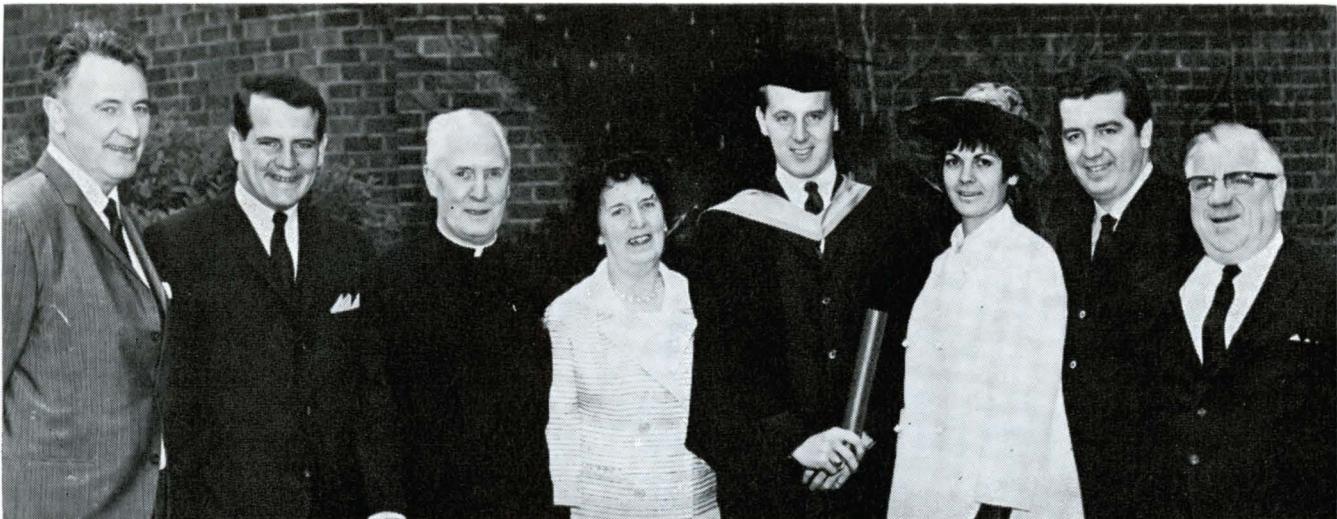

Special awards presented Saturday included: The Governor-General's Medal to Robert T. O'Meara; the Minister of Education's Silver Medals to Brian A. Boire (Science), and Bernard Jones (Commerce); and the Loyola COTC Medal to Neil R. Capper.

In his speech of welcome, Father Malone announced that a new women's residence will be open in the fall, with places for 110 students.

He also thanked the public for a generous response to Loyola's development campaign, adding: "Loyola will continue to show thanks by amplifying educational opportunities on this campus."

Funny. We don't look Catholic.

We're perplexing a lot of people.
After all, what does a Loyola education have to do with television?
Or film-making, or advertising? Or the amplified culture of the Beatles and Joan Baez?
Nothing except education. Loyola's Communications Department is as traditional as its Science and Arts courses: we believe a good Catholic education has to be catholic.
Our faculty consists of men and women of all major creeds—and priests too—
all with a common purpose—awareness.
Now we must expand. We need new buildings, new equipment, new facilities. Please help us. Five dollars.
Or five thousand. Or whatever you can give.

International Seminar for High-School Students

This summer, C.U.S.O. will be sponsoring an International Summer Seminar for high-school students at Loyola. The Seminar will be free and will run from 9.00-11.00 A.M. every morning, except weekends, from July 31st to August 11th. It will involve lectures, movies, discussions and visits to EXPO, centered around Africa, Asia and Russia. The intention is to acquaint these students with the geography, history and politics of these areas, and, in general, to broaden their knowledge of developing countries. They hope to attract superior students with an interest in international affairs.

The Seminar will be run in co-ordination with the orientation programme for C.U.S.O. volunteers going to East and Central Africa on two-year contracts. The staff will be composed mainly of these volunteers, all of whom have at least B.A. or B.Sc. degrees and who will be teaching in high schools during their stay in Africa. The idea behind the Seminar, then, is both to stimulate the more intelligent type of high-school student and also to provide volunteers with some experience in teaching and working with young people.

Any high-school students interested in attending this seminar may do so by contacting Brian Slattery, at 482-0320, local 228, Loyola College.

The advertisement on the opposite page appeared in the June 9 edition of TIME magazine.

TIME recently offered a complimentary advertisement to universities and colleges in North America. Loyola is the first Canadian institution to qualify under the conditions set by the publishers of TIME.

Volunteers

Loyola will be host to 115 young volunteers of the Canadian University Service Overseas (C.U.S.O.) this Summer, July 16—Aug. 26. They will be on campus for an orientation program before they leave for East Africa to serve as teachers, engineers, doctors, nurses and in other useful capacities.

Director of the orientation program is Dr. Donald C. Savage of Loyola's history department. Two alumni will serve as co-ordinators. They are Brian Slattery, Arts '63, who has himself spent two years in Tanzania for C.U.S.O., and John McIninch, Arts '64, who is presently studying Law at Columbia University.

Three Loyola students will be assisting them: Peter Mbisa from Malawi, John Mvoya of Kenya and Peter Kyululi of Tanzania.

New Journals

Loyola of Montreal is close to becoming a publishing house. In recent months two faculty members, both in the Department of History, have been named editors of learned journals. Loyola will be the publisher of both of them.

"The Canadian Journal of African Studies" is edited by Dr. Donald C. Savage. The first issue was released April 4 and included bibliographies, book reviews and articles by Donald Savage, Frank Chalk, E. D. Laberge, J. R. Hooker and Louis Molet, in both French and English.

"Canadian Slavic Studies" edited by Assistant Professor Charles Schlacks will be released in June. This bilingual quarterly will be devoted to Slavic and Eastern European scholarship.

1967 — a university in the fullest sense," he said.

I feel that I can say this about the progress of the association in the past 12 months from an objective viewpoint because, due to circumstances of distance, I have watched much of this progress from afar and your board has achieved some significant advances.

"This 1966/67 marks the second year of the 'working directors' program whereby every member of the board had responsibility for a defined segment of the association's work. This plan has again worked well and has been, in fact, expanded to pass along some of the ever-expanding workload to key volunteers from the body of the alumni as a whole," said Mr. McNaughton.

"I think we all recognize that our role as an alumni is firstly to support our alma mater and, secondly, to provide benefits to our members. To reach these goals we must have an efficient organization. So, to produce more efficiency in the handling of our undertakings, we have seen two innovations this year.

"First, we have gone into the question of records and information with a vengeance and, under chairman Ron Hebert, with the active assistance of Gene Lewis and Tom Lee, we expect to have a working class agent system very shortly, a co-ordinated plan of activities with a 'critical path' to keep us on schedule.

"Secondly, we have taken a major step up by appointment of a full-time director of alumni affairs. I refer of course to Bernie McCallum. Bernie has been one of the most active of volunteer workers for the association over the years. He has served on many committees in the past, has been an elected director of the association and, more recently, he has set up the big Sports Hall of Fame program. In Bernie we have a gifted and dedicated man who can and will add most appreciably to the progress of the association.

"Here in Montreal, we saw many activities — to name a few — the presentation of the Loyola medal to His Eminence, Paul Emile Cardinal Leger; the homecoming under chairman Fred McCaffrey; the oyster party in the new gym under chairman Jim Dodge; the fall golf tournament under Bob Beauregard with controversial Herb Capozzi as guest speaker; the Loyola night at the Pops concert, and the senior class reunion.

"We also have increased our help to undergraduates via additional bursaries, and are currently heart and soul behind our huge fund appeal.

"Two very special developments do require mention here and now. I refer to the firm establishment of an alumni branch in Toronto, and the beginnings of one in Ottawa.

"Lastly, I would like to mention an activity that is anything but glamorous, but certainly vital: I refer to the task, undertaken by Charlie Phelan and his committee, on the modernization of our constitution and bylaws.

"I want to thank Father President and his staff for their co-operation and encouragement (and their patience, too) during my two years in the office of association president — to Dorothy McGee for her unselfish and wholehearted support during the past eight or nine years that I have been on the board — and my fellow directors, particularly my close friend, Charlie Phelan who, jointly and severally, have had to carry an extra load due to my absence from Montreal since last December."

A time for cheering...
A time for thought...
A time for remembering and looking forward, too.

At Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Canada's Centennial year has a double meaning — our bank was also founded in 1867.

This year is a time of reflective pride for all Canadians. A time for looking back to the great moments of our past. But it should be a time for us all to look forward, too — a pause before a new beginning.

On groundwork laid one hundred years ago we at the Commerce, like all Canadians, will build still more — achieving a still greater century in the years to come.

1967—Our Hundredth Year of Banking Service
